

Swindon Panel Preservation

Saving one of the original Western Region "turn push" type panels, the staple panel design of the Great Western since the 1960s, before they all close forever in the next few years.

The panel will be reconstructed and refurbished in its 1980's form and realistically operated with a simulator back-end.

You can get involved in saving the example of this generation of railway signalling development, visit our website for how!
